BERLIN CLAIMS VICTORY

Is Russia Ready for Its Proposed Drive Against the German-Austrian Force Now in Poland?
—Claim Bulgarians Checked.

London, Nov. 3.—The landing of French troops at Kavala, on the Greek coast, is reported in a Sofia telegram to Berlin, and although this news is unconfirmed, it seems a likely sequel to yesterday's information that British French transports had been sighted off this Greek port.

Whether these forces will be able to connect speedily enough with other troops aligned against the Bulgarians from Kirovack to Strumitza to relieve the pressure there and by a possible flank attack threaten the rear of the Bulgarian forces, is admittedly problematic.

Are Gratified.

The appearance of these fresh troops in the Balkans, however, is regarded in London as a gratifying matterialization of the French security positive announcement yesterday that the independence of Serbia was one of the essential objects of the war, and that Great Britain and France were in full agreement regarding the means whereby this might be attained.

Many Reserves.
With the exception of this reported landing of troops in the Balkan situation today presents little besides a tangled conflict of rumors, including one that Monastir is already in Bulgarian hands and that the Serbians are almost surrounded by the Austrians, Germans and Bulgarians and are hastily retreating to their last positions in the Albanian mountains.

These rumors, however, are discredited, or at least as regarded as premature, since the official communications from Berlin, Vienna and Sofia record no such developments.

Continue Attack.
The Austrians are making in northern and western Serbia and the Bulgarians in the east continue their attack, against which the defense gradually yields ground, but the situation is still vitally precarious.

The size of the German forces operating against Serbia is fixed at 150,000 men according to an authoritative source, the latest reached London.
Thus far the number of prisoners captured by this force is surprisingly small. The Austrians have officially admitted that they have been able to capture only twenty-seven Serbian soldiers and 6,800 men. The security officers are taken here to suggest that there must be many civilians among the six thousand odd prisoners.

Check Bulgarians.
Salonika. Bulgarians who are invading Serbia appear to have encountered a check at the Iavor delie, northwest of Krivopal, where the Serbians are strongly entrenched.
In consequence of the resistance on the part of the Serbians, the residents of Monastir are somewhat less fearful that the city will fall into the hands of the Bulgarians. Some foreigners at Mon-astir, including the family of the Russian consul, have abandoned their intention of quitting the town at the present time.

Capture Pass.
Toward the north, Bulgarians
have captured the famous Katchanik Pass, which played such a conspicuous part in the Albanian uprising against the Turkish government in 1903, in front of Tetovo, which the Bulgarians hold with strong forces. The Serbians have been arrested. The Serbians have been able to assume the offensive in the direction of Prizren.

On the front in Macedonia held by French and British troops there is little change. The entire occupied region has been cleared of Bulgarians as far as the front is concerned.

Russia Preparing.
Petrograd furnished the information that additional German troops have been sent from the Russian front to Serbia, and military observers here believe that the opportunity will soon come to the Russian armies completely to develop their offensive which has been for some time under way.

Paris, Nov. 3.—Announcement was made by the war office today of the repulse of a Bulgarian attack on French troops in southern Serbia, near Krivopal. In the region of Strumitza the French troops are advancing on the mountains near the frontier.

Claim Victory.
Berlin, Nov. 3.—The city of Ustie in the northwestern Serbia has been captured by the Germans. It is considered an important strategic point. The announcement was official.

On Russian Front.
The war office announced today that Marshal Von Hindenburg had been forced to withdraw his lines between Swenon and Ilsen lakes, on the heavy Austrian losses.

Rome, Nov. 3.—Austrian troops, fighting on the Isonzo-Carso line, on October 21, 22 and 24 lost more than half their effectives, says the idea Nazionale.
Unable to save pieces of artillery, the Austrians rolled them into ravines and torrents.

Twelve and seventeen-inch guns in position on Mount Santo at Mount Sabatino, in the region of Gorizia, were dismounted by artillery.

"Bottle" Austrian Fort.
Lidne, Italy, Nov. 3, via Paris.— Hansel, center of the Austrian system of fortifications around Mar-borghetto, dominating the road from Pontafel to Travis, has been "bottle" up, according to Italian troops, also surrounding heights have been occupied by Italian heavy guns, rendering the fort powerless.

HEAD OF THE NEW FRENCH CABINET IS CONSIDERED NATION'S ABLEST STATESMAN

Leading figures in new French cab-
and Minister of Justice Viviani.
Bottom, Minister of War Gallieni.

With the elevation of Aristide Briand to the premiership the strongest political figure which has risen in France since the days of Clemenceau, possibly excepting President Raymond Poincare, again assumes power. M. Briand is fifty-one years old. He became premier for the first time six years ago, and it is since that time that he has done
most to demand the attention not only of France but of the whole of Europe. Fifteen years ago he was unknown.

TO ARBITRATE CASE
OF AMERICAN SHIP
SEIZED BY BRITISH

Question of What Determines a Vessel's Nationality Will be Main Point at Issue.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Nov. 3.—Settlement through arbitration of the case of the American steamship Hocking, seized by a British cruiser off the Atlantic coast, was forecasted today as a result of a new issue which has arisen between the United States and the entente allies, a question of method of determining nationality of merchant ships.

The seizure of the Hocking is the first since the British government's change of policy conformable to the French rule that a vessel's nationality is determined by ownership, and not by flag. This position is widely at variance with that of the United States.

Great Britain and the United States have been virtually have been agreed that a vessel's nationality is determined by the flag she is entitled to fly, so that ships under German or Austrian flags were considered fair prize. The British government, it is understood, will contend that the Hocking was purchased with German money.

The American government is awaiting the British government's explanation of the reasons for the change, which probably will result in a prompt protest and a demand for the surrender of the Hocking.

It is considered likely here that the British government will resort to prize court proceedings. The United States will not object to such a step.

KING GEORGE STILL

Although Condition Improves, Says Doctors' Bulletin.

London, Nov. 3.—The physicians in attendance upon King George, who was injured last week while at the front, in a statement issued today,
gave out the following bulletin today:
"The King has not had so good a night. He is still in some pain. His general condition has improved and he is now able to take solid food."

FRENCH NAMES CHANGED TO GERMAN, IN ALSACE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, Nov. 3.—A certain number of French geographical and municipal names in Alsace, tolerated by the Germans for forty-five years, have now been supplanted by German names. Belfort has become Schoen-grunde; Portouis is now Ludwigstet; Fondy is changed to Urbach. The philological and historical mission that made these changes decided to leave the names of Saint Privat and Gravelotte unchanged because of the historical interest attaching to these famous battlefields.

PLANNED BY STATE
IN NEXT TWO YEARS

Expenditures Will Amount to a Million and a Half, According to State Engineer Mack.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

struction, or are to be constructed in contract for the building, and the appropriation is $3,000. Materials are being delivered on the ground.

Completed in 90 days.

Hog cholera serum plant, university. The appropriation for this building, amounting to $600,000, plans and specifications are completed and bids are requested by the purchasing department.

Camp Randall, university. Appropriation, $200,000. Plans and specifications for the excavation and filling for the bleachers and improvements at Camp Randall have been completed. Bids are now being obtained by the purchasing department.
Work on the concrete bleachers will be started in the spring. The design for the present bleachers has a capacity for 10,000 seats of which about 5,000 will be constructed by the balance of the appropriation.

Physics building, university. Appropriation, $190,000. Contract for this building was let to the Wisconsin Construction company and it is expected that excavation will be started within a short time. The building will be completed in about a year and a half from the present date.

Soils building, university. Appropriation, $55,000. Contracts for the excavation and superstructure of the soils building have not yet been approved by the governor.

university. This is a repair item which it is expected will run between $5,000 and 6,000 in cost. Bids have been received by the purchasing department and it is expected that the work will soon be started.

Sprinkler system in the main portion of the chemistry building, university. The purchasing department is asking for bids on this work, which is expected to cost between $4,000 and $5,000. This is for the fire protection of the main portion of the building, which is not a fireproof structure.

Pumping station, university. Preliminary drawings for the improvements in the pumping station expected to cost $20,000 are being prepared.

Bath house for women and remodeling of host house, university. Appropriation $7,500. Field house for women on Camp Randall, $50,000.

STEAMER HITS REEF;
EIGHTEEN ARE LOST

PACIFIC COAST PASSENGER BOAT
DRIVEN AGROUND IN GALE AND HEAVY SEA.

LIFE BOATS CAPSIZED

One Boat Containing Passengers Overturns With a Heavy Load of Life Boats.—Members of Crew Swim Ashore.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Marshall, Ore., Nov. 3.—Eighteen persons are believed to have lost their lives when the passenger steamer
Santa Clara from Portland to San Francisco, went aground on the south point near the entrance to Coos bay late yesterday. Eleven bodies have been recovered and nine other persons are missing. Today the steamer was riding even on her keel and it is believed she may be saved.

Driven on Reef by Gale.
The Santa Clara struck a southerly
gale on what is known as Mussle Reef.
The vessel first struck a shoal and was swerved from her course and thrown onto the reef, a mile inside
the bar.

The loss of life occurred when life-boats were lowered in an attempt to send the passengers ashore. At least one of the boats capsized in the heavy seas.

According to Mate Tessell, the shoal on which the vessel first struck was anchored apparently having recently been formed in a southerly gale and heavy sea the vessel became unmanageable after striking the shoal.

Two Life Boats Capsized.

Life boats were immediately lowered. Two boats overturned in the surf. One contained mostly passengers, while the other carried the captain and most of the crew. Most of those in the latter boat managed to swim ashore. There were forty-eight passengers on the boat, and the crew numbered forty-two. Of those who reached here today, many were still in a condition of exhaustion. Vehicles were dispatched from here to bring as many as were able to travel to Marshall.

Latest reports said that a heavy sea was driving the Santa Clara today and that she probably would be a total loss. The Santa Clara was a wooden vessel 223 feet long and 12½ tons net.

VANGUARD ARRIVES
FOR 64TH CONGRESS

Many Legislative Battles Expected
Over Vast Amount of Important Questions to Arise.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

SOME PROBLEMS FACING 1915-16 CONGRESS.

National defense, Revenues and inheritance taxes, Increase of the war tax, Government ship purchase and merchant marine, Rural credits, Woman suffrage, Retention of Sugar lands, Prayers in the Congress, Nicaraguan and Haitian treaties, War export embargo resolutions, Curbing senate debates
by closure, Philippine independence, Development of Government's resources, Gas, coal, oil and grazing leases, Attacks on La Follette's seamen's law,
Child labor regulation, Income tax, Federal Reserve, Immigration,
A National budget, Asiatic immigration exclusion, Direct presidential primaries, Canadian fisheries convention, Nicaragua, Panama Canal, Constitution, National moving, Censorship, Parcel post extension, Government ownership of telegraphs and telephones.

Washington, Nov. 3.—The vanguard of political armies of the Sixty-fourth congress was assembling today. Congress will reconvene Dec. 6.
Within a fortnight legislative meetings of "steering" committees are scheduled. Party caucuses are arranged. President Wilson is completing his opening "address," a speech it is understood, he will again deliver in person.

The legislative program, already largely framed, promises unusual factorial strife, the rate of two or three pieces of legislation a day, and presidential prospects, with many booms due for puncturing, involved.
Shortly after congress meets annual conferences of Republican and Democratic committees are scheduled to begin firing heavy artillery of the next presidential campaign.

Legislation provoked by war conditions promises to monopolize attention. The administration plans to petite passage of a resolution on extending the war tax at least another year. It expires Dec. 31. Another resolution for prompt action will be that concerning the tariff, now scheduled to go on the free list
in May.

Woman suffrage hosts are planning
a monster demonstration at the opening of congress. Increased appropriations for the army and navy are gargantuan. The administration plans to begin firing heavy artillery of the next presidential campaign.

Another big battle over the government ship purchase bill is believed inevitable because of division among Democratic leaders. Among the political developments impending will be the extent of Republican and Bull Moose amalgamation and the degree of unity in the Democratic party.

The arena of the sharpest controversies
the overwhelming Democratic majority there of the last congress being out to a scant 26. The appearance of new Democratic leaders there and the return of Republican veterans like "Uncle Joe" Cannon, William McKinley and "Nick" Longworth, lend interest. Speaker Champ Clark, Republican house leaders, and Representative Kitchin, Democratic leader, are expected to be re-elected.

G. O. P. WINS STATE

McCall Is Elected Governor by a Margin of 5,663 Over Democratic Incumbent.—Ohio Stays
"Wet"—Other Results.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Nov. 3.—Elections in ten states yesterday emphatically declared woman suffrage opponents
in New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, and gave the republicans an additional representative in congress and the new "governor in Massachusetts.

The democrats apparently elected a governor in Maryland and an entire state ticket, besides a majority in the state legislature.

In Kentucky both parties claim a victory in the gubernatorial contest,
but incomplete returns from one hundred and eleven of the one hundred and twenty counties gave former Congressman Stanley Democrat and of 9,029 over Edwin P. Morrow, his Republican opponent.

Mississippi, the only other state to elect a governor, went as usual democratic.

In New York the republicans retained control of the lower house of the legislature, although they lost one assemblyman. They also elected a majority of the mayors chosen in cities of the state.

In addition to defeating the suffrage amendment by about 210,000 votes, the people of New York repudi-cated the state constitution drafted
by a convention of which Elihu
Root was president, and for which Mr.
Root had conducted a vigorous campaign.

McCall Carries Massachusetts.
Samuel W. McCall, the republican who will succeed David I. Walsh, democrat, as governor of Massachusetts, won by a plurality of 6,663. The republicans retained control of the Massachusetts legislature by a large majority in both branches.

The republicans returned to power
in Philadelphia, where their candidate, Thomas R. Smith, was elected Mayor by 4,000.

In New Jersey the republicans gained two state senators and two members of the assembly, and will continue in control of both houses of the legislature.

State-wide prohibition was rejected
in Ohio by a majority of from 26,000 to 40,000. Last year the amendment was defeated by 84,152. The republicans defeated in Cleveland and Cincinnati. Charles M. May, progressive, was chosen mayor of Toledo.

Municipal Ownership Issue.
The city of Toledo voted against a twenty-five year lease of the water and will take over all lines controlled by the Toledo Railway and Light company.

A proposal that the city purchase
the local street railway was rejected
in Detroit after a bitter fight.

The election of members of the Virginia general assembly will send a heavy majority to the senate and house, pledged to the enactment of legislation when the state goes
"dry" by constitutional amendment November 1, 1916.

POINT FOR DEFENSE
IN NEW HAVEN TRIAL

C. C. Goodrich Testifying for Government Upsets Previously Arranged Line of Proof.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Nov. 3.—The defense in the trial of the eleven directors and former directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad under the Sherman anti-trust law, apparently scored a point with one of the government's own witnesses when the trial was resumed today. It elicited from C. C. Goodrich, general manager of the Hartford & New York Transportation company, a steamboat line, the statement that when that line entered into an agreement with the New Haven & Hartford railroad, the agreement enabled each company to do business that was normally and naturally tributary to it at the time.

The government had previously sought to show through Goodrich that the line had been in a competitive war with the New Haven and that the agreement had been made to suppress this competition.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Rome, Nov. 3.—Rome is again threatened with flood following the experience of last winter when the Tiber overflowed its banks with unprecedented frequency. From the dome of St. Peter may be seen an extensive area of country covered by water. Thus far no loss of life has been reported.

GEORGIA LAWMAKERS
IN SPECIAL SESSION

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 3.—The Georgia legislature called in special session
today by Governor Harris, had before it six subjects for consideration. Chief of these were appropriation bills,
which made a special session necessary, and bills to make more stringent state prohibition laws. Passage of an appropriation measure was prevented
at the regular session in June last,
by a bitter prohibition fight.

U. S. COURT ORDERS
MYRLAND IMPRISONED

SECRETARY OF TAX COMMISSION
FOUND GUILTY OF CON-TEMPT BY JUDGE
SANBORN.

STATE RIGHTS ISSUE

Officials Believe He Is Governed by State Law Which Forbids Making Public of Income Tax Statement.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Nov. 3.—A. J. Myrland, secretary of the state tax commission,
was found guilty of contempt for failure to produce the income tax record of the Valecia Condensed Milk company in bankruptcy court, and was ordered incarcerated in the Dane county jail by Federal Judge A. L.
Sanborn this morning, pending the legal move which will be made by the attorney general's office.

Myrland is in the custody of the United States marshal. Following the serving upon Myrland of the order by Judge Sanborn, hurried conference was held with the attorney general's office and with Judge Sanborn. Unless a stay of execution of the order committing Myrland to the Dane county jail can be effected, habeas corpus proceedings will be started before the state supreme court this afternoon.

Myrland refused to answer the questions relating to the income tax returns of the Valecia Condensed Milk company in federal court because the state income tax law specifically forbids making public income tax returns under penalty of fine and imprisonment.

The case involves a clash between federal and state authorities, the attorney general's office claiming Myrland has no right to disclose the returns.

It is claimed by lawyers that the case may prove as interesting from a legal standpoint as the famous Joseph Glover case of Racine, where long litigation was occasioned in state and federal courts over the enforcement of the fugitive slave law.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Teaching penmanship through the use of motion pictures is to be attempted at the University of Chicago. A school of education, it was announced today, will begin from a series of films of Chicago children from six to twelve years, will be subjects of the experiments.

The experimenters who have perfected the system, say that in teaching good penmanship it is a question of training the hand, and in order to learn exactly how to train the hand, motion pictures will be made. This will show the hands of the best writers in action.

John D. Rockefeller's general education board is financing the experiments, and has voted an initial appropriation of $7,500.

INTERESTING TALK

AS TO ADVERTISING

Frank D. Hayes Explains Some Essential Features of the Art of Telling the Public What You Have to Sell.

One of the courses that is increasing in popularity at the Continuation school, is the course in advertising which Frank D. Hayes is conducting once a week. The following is a re-telling of the last address he gave to the members of the class in which he talked of the functions of an advertisement.

The functions of an advertisement are:

1. To attract favorable attention.
2. To create a desire.
3. Carry conviction.
4. Inspire confidence.
5. Influence regarding to buy.
6. Influence regarding to good headlines, attractive illustrations and individual layouts.

Desire is created by appealing to the senses of sight, hearing, touch, smell, taste, and the needs, sentiments, emotions and prejudices.

To carry conviction an advertisement must appeal to reason, give necessary information, use a logical argument, and answer objections.

An advertisement should inspire confidence by an earnest style, honest and sincere claims, avoiding extravagant and exaggerated statements.

The components of an advertisement are:

1. Copy.
  2. Display.
  3. Illustration.
- Copy is the reading matter. The type as set up is called type matter. Copy refers to the entire working of the ad, the headlines plus the text plus the address.
- The display is that part of the reading matter set in type larger than the type of the text or body.
- The illustration refers to pictures or ornaments used to liven the ad, and attract attention.

Selling points of an article are those qualities that make people wish to buy. Selling points are: Appearance, style, fit, comfort, convenience, flavor, taste, aroma, color, sound, touch, weight, size, quality, price, material, workmanship, durability, healthfulness, strength, safety, utility, reliability, purity, economy, investment, pleasure, education.

To procure information on selling points study manufacturers' ads and catalogs, and talk to the traveling men, talk to consumers and prospective users, and study the article itself.

There are three classes of copy:

1. Reminding copy.
2. Informing copy.
3. Salesmanship copy.

Reminding copy is a brief statement of the name of a firm or product, so that an impression will be made on all prospective buyers.

Informing copy depends on its repetition rather than any argument of description. The results from this kind of advertising are slow, but cumulative.

In this copy the name should be displayed most attractively.

Informing copy and salesmanship copy are used to produce immediate sales. They are also called creative copy, reason why copy, or data built copy. It is publicity that convinces the reader that he needs and should have the article advertised.

The components of copy are:

1. Headings.
2. Subheadings.
3. Body matter.
4. Price.
5. Advertisement to the reader.
6. Firm name and address.

The heading should contain either the name of the article for sale, a selling point, or that which is of interest to the buyer or a benefit to be derived by him. If articles are already in demand, the special feature of the brand should be emphasized. If the article must be forced, a benefit or utility should be used in the heading.

A heading should be short, clear and crisp, straightforward, and to the point.

The heading may form a complete statement or may be part of the first sentence in the body.

There are four kinds of headings:

1. Informative heading.
2. Interrogative heading.
3. Direct command heading.
4. Blind heading.

A declarative heading must carry conviction, such as "These pens write smoother."

An interrogative heading is effective because the reader answers the question in his own mind as "Do you wish to dress well for less money?"

A direct command heading is strong, short, simple, direct, easily understood, and suggests action. It should not be so insistent as to create opposition. "Cure that cold."

A blind heading gives no indication as to the nature of the article for sale. It is not so good as the others because it speculates in an attempt to reach the buyer. Example: "Things don't turn up."

Subheadings make an ad easier to read and understand. They are used for emphasis or as an index in case several points or articles are discussed. They should be so worded as to deliver a complete message. A reader can then scan the subheads and get the gist of the whole ad.

Short introduction will maintain interest aroused by the heading and is the connecting link between the heading and remainder of the copy. Unless important, the introduction is often skipped. Do not use far fetched introductions. Do not indulge in reveries of self admiration.

After the introduction should come a description of the article, using the selling points as suggested above.

Price—convince the reader first. Then tell him the price if that price is no lower than usual. If the price is low use it as an introduction, but tell why it is low.

A high price should be preceded by a quality introduction.

Advertisement to reader—is a brief statement to make him act quickly.

The name and address should be clear. Association with well known buildings helps the buyer who is not acquainted with store, as Opp. Post-office, or near City Hall, etc.

A number of new members have joined the class, and interest is becoming more manifest at every meeting.

Eagles' Notice: Regular meeting Thursday, Nov. 4. Buffet lunch after business meeting. Come all.

JANESVILLE STORES

ARE NOT AFFECTED BY SUNDAY CLOSING

New Law Applies Only to Milwaukee.

—District Attorney Dunwiddle Corrects Misaken Belief.

Janesville delicatessen stores are not affected by the new state law which provided for Sunday closing, according to District Attorney Dunwiddle, who corrected today the misapprehension that the act was state-wide. His explanation: The law which is chapter 236, laws of 1915, plainly designates that it is applicable to cities of the first class, or Milwaukee alone. The measure was passed and amended to what are known as the Wisconsin "blue laws," which were copied after the old "blue laws" of Massachusetts, which were of puritanical origin. The correction of the act was made because it had gained credence in this city that local shops would be affected, will be met with relief by a number of business places as well as some of their customers.

The law itself is brief and reads as follows:

AN ACT to create section 4555a of the statutes, relating to works of necessity or charity.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. There is added to the statutes a new section to read: Section 4555a. The keeping open of a store or shop in cities of the first class, for the sale of groceries, meats or meat products, on the first day of the week, shall not be deemed a work of necessity or charity.

This act shall take effect on November 1st, 1915.

Approved June 23, 1915.

There is quite a little competition among the boys of the force at Janesville yards as to which one is the prettiest. The contest has dwindled down until now it is between three of the boys in the machine shops, all others being eliminated.

R. C. Wilkins has returned to the night switch engine job after spending two days on the day switch.

C. M. & St. P. R. R. Supt. Thurber was in Janesville yesterday and went out on the Mineral Point division.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Back River Lodge No. 210, will hold their annual convention, Thanksgiving Eve, November 24, at Assembly Hall.

Average Life of Engineer: It is not generally realized that the working life of the average locomotive engineer is only eleven years. To be more exact, it is eleven years and seven days. These figures are based on information collected by the insurance department of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, a cooperative association which carries insurance for its members amounting to $145,000,000.

The rule in the working life of the locomotive engineer is to shorten that life, but they also subject him to all kinds of injuries. For example, for the last ten years, the average accident rate per locomotive engineer has been 1.5 per cent. For the amputation of one or both arms from accidental injury, locomotive engineers received nearly $250,000. The total for ten years, from accidents alone was $6,574,500.

In a recent speech before the National Association of Railroad Commissioners, Grand Chief Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers declared that the whole capital of the railroad industry is his labor. "That 5¢ his whole stock in trade, that he has to sell in the railroad service," continued, "is 5¢. They realize that enough must be saved from the earnings of the locomotive to buy a new engine when the old one is worn out. What they have not learned that the entire capital of the industry is his labor, muscle and brain power, which are daily being burned up and consumed until after a comparatively short time he goes to the industrial scrap heap. We are sarcastically referred to the 'dignity of labor' but if trying to have men pay their honest debts, trying to have them save their money, trying to have the standard of efficiency, is being the aristocrats of the labor world, then we plead guilty and are proud of it."

"It has recently been calculated that out of every 100 men who start in the railroad industry, only 10 become engineers, and that out of every 100 who finally become engineers, only 10 become passenger engineers. The next time you see some gray-haired engineer leaning out of the cab of the engine that has drawn you safely to your journey's end, remember that he represents the sifting out process—the survival of the fittest."

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the system.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all, keep it up! As soap and hot water act in the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water, before breakfast, act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

WISCONSIN INTENT ON BEATING ILLINI

Students at 'Varsity Holding Mass Meetings to Arouse Spirit Sad-den by Coach Staggs.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Nov. 3.—The first of a series of rousing mass meetings was held this afternoon on Camp Randall before the varsity football squad. A call was issued Monday for this meeting to crush all adverse criticism that has been thrown at Coach Juneau and others because of the Chicago defeat. Over a thousand students joined in the yelling, led by McArthur, the cheerleader, while the band turned out and assisted by playing variety airs. The next meeting, to reinstate Wisconsin spirit to a more marked degree, will be held Friday afternoon, with two more similar outdoor sessions next week.

Quarterback Eber Simpson is rather discouraged over the fact that he missed the goal last Saturday that would have tied the score. Moreover, Smith and Byers are disappointed because they dropped the ball at critical times. Coach Juneau lays the defeat to fumbling alone, although he admits his team was outplayed by the Maroons.

The sound commenced work Monday with a different attitude than that which prevailed last week. Intent on trimming Illinois and Minnesota, Captain Howard Buck is giving his men all the encouragement he can. Meyers, Galvin, Koch and Kreuz should be in excellent condition to tackle the Illini in another week.

In the scrimmage that was held this afternoon Smith and Byers featured with long runs, the former sprinting off several good gains for fifteen and twenty yards, while Byers scored a touchdown after a sixty yard run through the strong scrub eleven. The defeat Saturday was responsible for much gloom on the campus Monday, but students are now bent on beating Zuppke's men at Urbana next week. Wisconsin can win the title if Chicago loses both her remaining games and Buck and his crew copy both Badger games. Illinois won from Wisconsin last year, when the Badgers were less than 50 per cent as good as they are this year. A scrap between Byers and Pogue is looked for, as many here believe the feisty Dow is equal to Zuppke's star.

BASKETBALL RULES SHOW NEW REFORMS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

New Regulations Make It Necessary For Players to "Play the Ball and Not the Man."

Basketball rules, just issued show many changes and the object of the changes, according to the joint rules committee, is not only to provide a uniform code for all games, but to induce players to "play the ball and not the man."

Every effort has been made to center play about the ball and baskets and not about the players. New rules govern blocking, holding, and charging and special attention to the penalties in these departments. It is expected the rules will make a good deal of "rough house" out of the game and make it more open for the benefit of players as well as spectators.

The rules have been adopted by the Young Men's Christian association, Amateur Athletic union and National Collegiate Athletic association, so that this year, for the first time, all games will be played under the same code. In former years there were two sets of rules and the style of game permitted under them was vastly different. One of the most important changes permits a shot for goal after a dribble. Another states that on a free trial for goal players will be allowed to enter the free throw lane as soon as the ball hits the basket or background. This is expected to be an improvement over both sets of old rules as the time for entering the lane is fixed definitely. When the referee awards the ball to a player out of bounds, an opponent is not allowed to touch the ball and delay play long enough for his men to "cover" opponents. This is planned to do away with one of the most unsportsmanlike features of the game. The rule book comments on the changes in the code and pays special attention to the rules on blocking, holding and charging, the idea being to do away, as much as possible, with personal contact and roughness.

YALE'S COACHES START REBUILDING OF ELEVEN; NOTES FROM GRIDIRON

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 3.—Yale's coaching staff was today reinforced by ex-Capt. Tom Shevlin, who made the jump from Minneapolis in response to Captain Wilson's emergency call.

While Shevlin is regarded as a coaching system, Captain Wilson, night-stated that the coaching would be done by a board of directors, of which Frank Hinkley, who has been head coach, would be a member.

Howell Vannoststrand, freshman quarterback last year, was given that position on the varsity, Captain Wilson going to right half back, displacing Higginbotham, who went to his former position at left end, succeeding Mosely.

Captain Wilson authorized the following statement:

"The football situation up to today has been that the team has lost confidence and lacks knowledge of elementary football. This has been due in a large part to the fact that experienced and older men who have played on former championship Yale teams have not been assisting in the coaching. They have now been called back, both by Coach Hinkley and myself. They will take charge of the team. In effect the change is a return to the old Yale method of a board of coaches taking the responsibility for the team instead of any single coach. Mr. Hinkley will be one of this board."

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 2.—George McKinlock, the chunky Harvard half back, had his first taste of scrimmage this afternoon in the Yale game and his bad leg seems as strong as ever. The varsity went through a half hour's hard scrimmage, defeating the second team by one touchdown. King made the score, bounding through center after Mahan and Boles had taken the ball forty yards by straight rushing.

The second team played in flashes, gaining great ground on so-called Princeton formations, but it lacked the punch to get inside the varsity's twenty yard line.

Smith Injured.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 2.—Examination by varsity medical advisers of an injury to Half Back Smith in this afternoon's scrimmage between the varsity and the reserves revealed a shoulder dislocation which will keep him out of action for some time.

RESTA SETS NEW MARK FOR ONE HUNDRED MILES ON SHEEPSHEAD COURSE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

New York, Nov. 3.—Dario Resta added another victory to his long list here Tuesday afternoon when he won the 100 mile Harbinger gold challenge cup from a field of six starters. Bob Burman finished second.

Resta's time for the century was 56 minutes 55.71—1:00 second. Resta's average speed was 105.36 miles per hour. This established an American record for the distance.

Eddie Rickenbacker, driving a Maxwell, finished third, with Resta and Burman drove Peugeot's.

At the end of the first lap Johnny Aitken, in a Blue Devil Peugeot, flashed by in the lead.

After leading for ten miles Aitken went out with a broken connecting rod. Burman took the lead, but at twenty miles Mulford went to the front. His speed average was 105.74 miles an hour. Mulford held the lead at twenty-five miles.

Dario Resta had jumped into the lead at fifty miles. Mulford was close behind. Resta's time was 55:55, an average of 105.5 miles an hour.

De Palma went out of the race on the fortieth mile with a broken connecting rod. Resta's time was 42:21.1, an average speed of 105.20 miles an hour, a new American record for the distance.

A cash prize of $12,500 went with the gold cup offered as the trophy for the race, which was an invitation affair and planned only for the six leading drivers of the country.

THE FIRST TEST.

From the morning after the election reports it would appear that the republican party made decided gains at the polls in states holding elections on Tuesday.

Not only that, but they elected a republican governor in Massachusetts, forty out of sixty members of the legislature in New Jersey, and made gains in congressional representation throughout the country.

One of the features of the election was the fact that in every state where the question of equal suffrage was voted on, it was overwhelmingly defeated.

New York, by 200,000; Massachusetts, from 80,000 to 100,000; in Pennsylvania, by 250,000. It can not be said now as in the case of the New Jersey election on this question, "the cause of suffrage has not lost anything."

Of course they have not really lost anything as they had nothing to lose, never having had suffrage, but the vote is decisive.

Ohio remained in the wet column, but by reduced majority. This is a direct repudiation of William Jennings Bryan, who stumped the state in the cause of prohibition during the last ten days of the campaign. Some of the Illinois cities which voted on the wet or dry question, went wet after being dry, but the majority stuck to the water wagon despite spirited campaigns.

The Massachusetts election, however, is the most encouraging from a republican point of view as the gains show twenty-four per cent republican increase in the past two years and a gradual reuniting of the republican forces split two years ago on the question of progressive and stand-pat ideals. Taking it all in all it is a republican forecast of success for the Nineteen Sixteen election.

THE CAVELL EXECUTION.

Perhaps nothing has stirred all England to a closer understanding of the real issue at stake in the continental struggle than the execution of Miss Cavell, the English nurse in Belgium, by the German authorities.

The ultra anti-German press of the country have taken up the question in no unmeasured language. They do not hesitate to call down the punishment of the heavens upon the heads of the men responsible for the death of this one English woman. Enlistments in England have redoubled their report, since the news of her death was made public. Of course this is but an incident in the whole war, but read what the War Spectator, one of the leading anti-German press in the United States, has to say editorially.

"Admitting that the murder of a prim and conscientious little old maid in Brussels, under the authority and regulation of the German military machine, turns a decent person's soul sick, there is something else to be said which bears upon German credit, to say nothing of that widely improbable contingency—Germany's ultimate success. What has happened is another demonstration of her appalling capacity for mistakes.

"To murder Miss Cavell was not more atrocious than to bestialize the villages of Belgium, or to destroy a culture, in the library of Louvain, which has been never saw. What is exhibited is the astonishing German reasoning. If it were stated as a plea in court, it might take the simple form: 'Germany is entitled to take what she wants, because she wants it; and the more she wants it, the stronger her right becomes.' She is therefore entitled to take any means to enforce this modification of the Ten Commandments, and the brutal murder of this poor little woman, in the head of night to cheat her of the possibility of an appeal, comes the merest incident. The deadly and destructive advertising effect of such a crime is incomprehensible to the German mind.

"It is typical of a habit of mind which the worship of force and efficiency, to the exclusion of everything else, has developed. There is everything to be said for the criminal, when he realizes the enormity of his crime. That, indeed, is the basis of Christianity and of every religion that has stood the test of ages. But the difficulty of the present case is that the German system of education has bred a people who fail to realize that things like this are crimes at all. Treaties are scraps of paper, and the parole of a German officer is worthless because, characteristically differing from all other bearers of their country's commission, he is not what the world calls a 'gentleman.'

"The financial consequence is clear enough. This wonderful German efficiency recognizes the instant advantage, but fails to grasp the secondary consequence. No bond which the German government could issue will be in foreign eyes, anything better than a 'scrap of paper.' The complete inability to appreciate what constitutes humanity, compassion, character, honor, is a national defect in credit which will be felt in interest rates.

"However Germany may have deluded herself about indemnities after the war, her defenders should have the sense to see that she must borrow money from the only people with any to lend, and that she will borrow it, in effect, over the grave of Edith Cavell. Not an inspiring banking proposition, is it?"

TIT FOR TAT.

There appears to be disposition on the part of some of the ultra-reformers of the state to try and blame the state administration for its plan to save state expenses by bringing back to the capitol building the various departments, that have been forced to find quarters in outside structures during the rebuilding of the present building. This is about as small peanuts as can be imagined.

If the taxpayers of the state can be saved some seventy-five thousand dollars in actual expenses for the state by this action, and the state can be served as well, why discuss it unless the idea is that the state treasury is being conducted for the special purpose of being looted by the general public. The good Lord knows our taxes are high enough as they are. The saving thus far made by Governor Philipp is not sufficient to bring bringing down the total more than a few million, but every hundred thousand dollar or so expenditure that is looted means just as much less in the future. It is poor policy for the anti-administration press to criticize this saving and if they had their just deserts the whole of the findings of the rottenness of the previous reform administrations ought to be given to the public and they compelled to publish it free of cost. It would fill many a page and some men would bow their heads with shame to think they had been part of the grand general loot of state funds for the benefit of a few.

The unification of Germany and Austria, the concentration of its power in handling its armies, moving them hither and yon when needed, is showing up wonderfully the old saying: "In unity there is strength." Meanwhile the allies are squabbling between themselves on lots of minor questions of policy.

Revised Football.

Football this year is mild, and no rough work is being allowed. As we understand the revised rules the following restrictions are made:

When one player finds another player's ear in his mouth during a scrimmage he is not supposed to bite it off as formerly, but he is allowed only to chew it until it has lost its semblance of its former self.

When one player gets the heel of his shoe into the mouth of an opposing player, he is not allowed to knock out the teeth, but he is allowed to chew it until it has lost its semblance of its former self.

When the situation is desperate, opposing players are not allowed to use pickaxes on each other's heads.

WHAT THE CRITICS

SAY OF "GRAUSTARK"

"Graustark" grips one with its dramatic interest. The theme is woven carefully about the thrilling situations, and the exceptionally clever acting of Essanay players brings out the intensity of the story."—Chicago Evening Post.

"Graustark" is a magnificent production from a pictorial standpoint and bristles with exciting situations. Splendid acting, capably and laudably interpreting the play, surcharges the production throughout."—Chicago Daily News.

"All will revel in 'Graustark.' The production of the picture is elaborate, being made with an eye to effective and artistic values."—Chicago Herald.

"In thrilling action, dramatic situations, scenic beauty and careful interpretation of the story by Essanay players, 'Graustark' is one of the best photoplays yet produced."—Moving Picture World.

"'Graustark' is one of the most pretentious pictures yet produced. McCutcheon's novel is unusually well adapted to photoplay and the careful production and clever acting mark it as unexcelled in the motion picture world."—Motion Picture News.

AT THE APOLLO.

"The Majesty of the Law" Tonight. George Fawcett is being started, tonight for the first time upon the screen by Bosworth Incorporated, has a story that is far above the oinary. Judge Randolph Kent repudiates his son when the latter makes no satisfactory explanation of how the jewels came to be found in his coat pocket which were stolen at Mrs. Monroe's ball.

That young Kent, heretofore the idol of the little city and the apple of his father's eye, was, after all, hopelessly from the beginning seemed proven when he was later indicted for embezzlement.

By an irony of fate Judge Kent himself is forced to hear the case, and on considering the incontrovertible evidence instantly gives his son the maximum sentence, ten years in state's prison.

But before the sheriff starts with the condemned youth it is discovered that young Kent has all along been sacrificing himself to shield others.

Innocent himself, he protected the thief of the jewels at the Monroes' because it was the brother of the girl he was about to marry, and shielded all Grenfell Lorry, the hero of the play, is the type of American beloved by all lovers of fiction. Rich, hand-when the Monroe scandal had made him an outcast.

George Fawcett's acting in the scene where the fatherhood and his judgeship conflict is one of the finest pieces of acting ever seen upon stage or screen.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Francis X. Bushman in "Graustark." This photoplay is dramatized from George Barr McCutcheon's most popular novel. While some of the scenes are laid in New York and Washington and on the train from Denver to Washington, the setting is chiefly in the mythical country of Graustark.

The scenes in the United States were taken at the exact spots represented in the novel, including the famous stage coach ride over the rough roads in the foot hills of the Allegheny mountains.

The drama is of that type of romance and adventure that appeals to all. Grenfell Lorry, the hero of the play, is the type of American beloved by all lovers of fiction. Rich, handsome and daring he falls in love with a princess traveling in disguise and follows her half way around the world to win her hand.

The adventures of the prince go through in the turbulent little kingdom where she reigns as like a page from the Arabian Nights.

Facing dangers on every hand, he rescues the princess from her abductors, follows the plot of two unscrupulous princes to win her hand, and finally saves her from the loss of her freedom. He surmounts all obstacles, baring an untitled American from marrying into a royal family and finally wins her as his bride.

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in the leading roles of Grenfell Lorry and Princess Yvette, cleverly interpret their parts. Bryant Washburn, Ernest Maupin, Thomas Commerford, Helen Dunbar, Lester Cuneo, George Barr McCutcheon and Edna Mayo all take important parts in an exceptionally strong cast.

This production can be seen at the Majestic on Thursday and Friday, in performances daily, at 2:30, 4:00, 7:30 and 9:00.

AT THE PRINCESS.

"Craters of Fire" Tomorrow. Three reel feature which will be shown at the Princess on Thursday, is an Italian subject, made by the Ambrosio company, presenting a theme popular among the foreign producers. Albert Capozzi is featured in a dual role, and plays with deep feeling and emotion throughout the picture. A stirring scene is that in which the two brothers fight the inventor falling into the task of re-heat. The story ought to please American patrons of the motion picture who desire a sensational story presented in good taste. Quite a beautiful scene is given showing the Venetian garden about a lake, and its destruction by fire is thrilling.

"ETERNAL CITY" IS A FILM OF GRANDEUR

Picturized Version of Hall Caine's Novel A Superb Production.

There have been beautiful scenic picture plays dependent upon artificial settings but for grandeur and beauty of natural scenes, "The Eternal City," seen at the Apollo yesterday, with its bits of modern Rome and ruins of old Rome, surpasses all other photoplays.

The picture was filmed in England and Italy and adheres as closely as possible to the story of the novel by Hall Caine and is brimful of thrilling scenes photographed against a background of matchless beauty. It goes without saying that the packed house last evening thoroughly enjoyed it.

It is its beauty that adds the finishing touch to the production. St. Peter's and the Vatican and the narrow, steep streets and the ancient palace of the capitol by the Tiber appear frequently, while the ruins of the Coliseum are used for one of the most effective passages of the play. Taken on the very ground described in the novel, the photoplay at once has conferred upon it an air of reality, impossible to achieve by any mere evocation or makeshift of the cleverest director. The London scenes are no less convincing. There is Charing Cross station, Trafalgar Square and an unmistakable bit of Soho right in front of the spectator.

Pauline Frederick played the part of Donna Anna in a thoroughly convincing manner and the camera has absorbed a pleasing portion of her good looks.

GRIFFITH MASTERPIECE PLAYS TO CROWDS

Packed Houses Greet Every Performance of D. W. Griffith's Eighth Wonder of the World "The Birth of a Nation."

Everyone wants to see this great picture and even though some little complaint is heard still no one wants to miss seeing a spectacle so unusual as this one. Judging from the attendance at each performance no one in this entire county is going to miss it.

There are so many wonderful scenes, the musical score is so in harmony with every scene of the picture that it really is worth one's time to see it. "The Birth of a Nation" will be at Myers Theatre all this week.

FEAR OF AIRSHIPS STOPS GRAVE RITE

Ceremonies for Dead Soldiers in Cemetery of Verano Prohibited by Italian Government.

(By Alice Robe.)

Rome, Nov. 2.—Many a poor woman who has denied herself necessities of life for months that her pitiful sons might buy candles for the soldier dead in the great cemetery of Verano at San Lorenzo, and strangers who traveled thousands of miles to see the flaming torches in this famous City of the Dead on All Saints Day, found posted the government's ultimatum banning the graves to darkness on this day, for the first time in centuries.

Church and sepulchre are not sacred from Teuton shells; and Austrian aeroplanes would find the flickering tribute to departed souls a tempting beacon for their bombs. Only the dimmest of small blue lights are permitted, and but few of these.

Rich and poor mingled in the slow caravan which made the road to San Lorenzo a series of bloom-bloom to fall upon the new-turned earth of a great many new graves. The graves of the Garibaidis, who fell in the battles of the Argonne, were buried in flowers.

On All Saints Day neither age nor sickness can keep the poor from the humble graves. The road to Verano is filled with tragic pictures as old and young plodded pathetically to the great burying ground, carrying their few flowers.

When rich and poor have lighted their own graves they throw their offering of oil into the great bronze urns of the Ossario, where lie buried, in common ground, the poor.

Men and women, bent and old, add a pathetic bit to the leaping flames, or throw a tiny waxen candle into the burning mass—for beneath the descript slabs lie their beloved ones.

There is no more impressive, no sadder sight in all Rome than this view from the high point of the Pinetto, when at sunset dusk has crept into these shadowed walks and the thousand lights on the graves of the dead gleam forth; when down avenues of cypresses one sees leaping toward heaven the great flames that burn the huge urn beneath a wooden cross where the people throw their offerings with a prayer for the souls of purgatory.

JAP ENVOY CREDITS POLICY OF AMERICA

Interview With Japanese Minister to China Is Complimentary to United States Policy.

(By Associated Press.)

Peking, Nov. 2.—An interview with the Japanese minister of China, Mr. Hiroki, which a local paper reprints with credit to the Japan Times of Tokyo, is especially complimentary to American policy in China and critical of the Chinese attitude.

Mr. Hiroki is now on leave in Japan, where he has been for several weeks recovering from an injury to his ankle sustained while the historic demands made upon China were under consideration last spring.

The published interview credits Mr. Hiroki with saying Japan would do well to emulate the United States in its dealings with China. "Take a leaf out of the American book," Mr. Hiroki is reported to have advised his fellow countrymen. "The United States is not bent upon the acquisition of interests and rights in China, while she has done a great deal towards the cause of education in that part of the world. There are three universities managed by Americans for Chinese students. In addition, the Boxer trouble indemnity which the Washington government received from Peking is returned to China and is being appropriated to the fund for training Chinese students in America. Some fifty students are every year dispatched to America by means of this fund. These circumstances the Chinese cannot but be impressed with deep gratitude for the American good offices, and be well disposed toward Americans."

In contrast to this American policy Mr. Hiroki is credited with saying practically all negotiations conducted with the Chinese by the Japanese since the Meiji era have resulted in "feeling." He attributes this to the fact that the Japanese take no practical interest in the Chinese after they have completed negotiations, but rather hold them in contempt. Although anti-Japanese sentiment is believed by Mr. Hiroki to be prevalent in several strata of Chinese society he is quoted as saying this feeling does not exist among the thinking classes of China, who are believed by him to be anxious to have good feeling between the two countries. Consequently Mr. Hiroki concludes his interview with a statement that smooth relations should be between Japan and China and are dependent largely upon a change in the attitude of the Japanese towards their neighboring state.

EVERY HOME NEEDS A BOOK LIKE "HEART THROBS"

No book ever published has so accurately mirrored the real sentiment of the American people. The 700 selections contributed by more than fifty thousand of our fellow countrymen and women show as nothing else in this wide world could do—their aspirations, their ambitions, their daily lives hidden from the public gaze. And it is a matter of congratulation for all of us that the standard as shown in "Heart Throbs" is of such a lofty and meritorious standard. The fifty thousand contributions sent in to the publishers contained not one ignoble thought or vulgar sentiment. Not one selection that did not make for the improvement of the individual and the elevation of his fellow-man. Truly, this is something to be proud of. And it has resulted in two volumes that should be in every home in this broad land for the moral and educational effect upon the younger generation. They will augment the education of the school, go hand-in-hand with the moral training of the church and be adjunct to the home culture that will be inestimable in its effect on the future life of the children. We know of nothing that will add more to home enjoyment and furnish happy memories of the past than "Heart Throbs." We therefore had a feeling of genuine pleasure when we were able to procure these invaluable books for the sole benefit of our readers. Our coupon, with its generous offer, will appear daily in this paper for the next few days.

If the Pittsburgh fans were appointing next year's manager, Hon. Wagner would have a cinch, but Barney Dreyfuss is still doing the picking for the Pirates, and, so far as is known, Barney hasn't voted.

CASE AFTER CASE

Plenty More Like This in Janesville. Scores of Janesville people can tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills. Many a happy citizen makes a public statement of his experience. Here is a case of it. What better proof of merit can be had than such an endorsement?

Lewis Gower, decorator, 1214 Mineral Point Ave., Janesville, says: "Landing paint and turpentine probably started my kidney trouble. I had severe attacks of pain through my loins. When I bent over, I had trouble in straightening again. My kidneys acted irregularly. It is also possible that riding a bicycle had something to do with bringing on the backache. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me. Since then my kidneys have been strong and I haven't had any more pains or aches."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Gower had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

Dr. William Osler, one of the foremost of living medical men, formerly of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, and now at Oxford, says in his "Practice of Medicine" (1912), on page 240: "The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputum the bacilli have been found. In the treatment of tuberculosis, the success of Beckman's tuberculin is shown by the fact that it contains a line salt combined with other ingredients as to be easily assimilated."

Many eminent medical authorities have testified to the efficacy of line salts in the treatment of tuberculosis, and the success of Beckman's tuberculin in this and allied throat and bronchial affections may be due partly to the fact that it contains a line salt combined with other ingredients as to be easily assimilated."

Widespread use of this remedy in numerous cases of tuberculosis, and many of which appear to have yielded completely to it—justifies our belief that it is a most valuable remedy. It is not a new treatment, but a successful one. It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs. It has made no promises concerning it, but more that reputable physicians have used it with their prescriptions, but we know of many cases in which it has helped. Your druggist has it or can get it, or you can send direct to Beckman Laboratory, Philadelphia.

Thin People Can Increase Weight

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "fat" should try eating a little Sargol for their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. If you are a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and many thin men and women believe can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put. Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it aids in turning the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepare it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. Much of this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol works to stop the waste and do it quickly and make the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive, all leading to this: in this vicinity sell it in packages—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back as found in each large box. ## The Heart of Night Wind

A Story of the Great Northwest

By

VINGIE E. ROE

Illustrations by Ray Walters

Copyright by Dodd, Mead and Company.

"Oh, I see!" said Sandry, shifting a sheet of papers. "Here it is. Well, that's a relief. And now for this Mister Hampden."

But Hampden was for himself and with a vengeance.

That evening Sandry met Siletz across the little meadow back of the camp, where he had gone for the mail sack, left swinging on the forked stick set up beside the county road. It had been a very wet day, with heavier showers than usual, and the veils of fog clung low along the hills. The little drops of mist were thick on her flannel shirt and on the two braids which hung down across her breast, round and girlish under the clinging woolen garment. As she came up to him he noticed the look of her eyes, and knew that something had stirred the emotions beneath that quiet exterior.

"Been up on the ridge?" he asked, vexed that it should take a slight effort to keep his voice to the common place. This girl in her natural setting always took him out of the everyday, affected him like a play with lowered lights, soft music and alien scenes. "Yes," she said dreamily, falling in to the whimsical speech that only escaped her when she stood apart on the hills, or listened to the pines, "it came tonight."

Sandry had gone a little way to meet her and the camp was shut from sight by a clump of spruce, new growth and low-branched. "Yes—the light. Oh, the great lights—red and gold and purple. When the sun breaks through just at the last. And I know the ocean is under it—blue and purple, too, like the hills. Some day I'll see it."

"You picture these things, don't you?" he said, "the things you have never seen—the sea and the cities and the outside world?"

"Yes—I know them all—my way. Sometimes I don't think I want to see them in their way—the real way. They might not be so beautiful. The Preacher says the glories of the world are a lure of the Devil. But I don't think so. It don't seem as if God would make things beautiful and let the Devil have them to ruin people with—and God made all things. And we are his best things."

"You believe that?" asked Sandry, with an odd note in his voice.

"Believe it?" said the girl wonderingly. "Of course. Don't you?"

"Well—it's been a long while since I've believed anything."

The girl was near to him now, the dreamy look of her eyes dissipated in amazement.

"You're lost!" she said simply. "The Preacher would say so—even Wahloowah would say so, and old Kolawmie!" "Wahloowah—Kolawmie? Who are they?"

"The Indian woman you saw me talking to in the glade and an old, old man of the Siletz. He who believes nothing will be punished by the Great Spirit—even as the preacher says in his way. And the Bible."

That sudden mist in her eyes touched Sandry.

"And so you would have me believe, little Siletz?" he asked kindly. The mist had thickened under the heavy lashes, and a look of distress was on her face where every emotion bared itself in unguarded innocence to the observer.

"Oh, dear heaven!" she breathed, "yes—oh, yes, you must! Why you would—you would—" but she could get no further with the appalling thought.

"And you?" probed Sandry curiously. "Have you visions of the soul's reward and punishment? Are you bound for celestial peace?"

"Yes," she said solemnly, "I must save my soul, though I lose the whole world."

The majestic Bible language cast over the man a feeling of smallness and he dropped his eyes.

"All right, Siletz," he said, smoothing the braid in his fingers. "I'll believe anything you say—set me up a totem pole or attend Sunday school at Toledo. Only forget it. By George, what a head of hair! If I were a woman and I'd give a thousand dollars for it. He lifted the rope and weighed it critically. "Why, what for?" asked Siletz, her eyes still solemn.

"To have it, of course. You're dreadfully unsophisticated. Come along." And swinging the mail sack he turned toward camp. Siletz came silently at his heels, falling in behind with a certain instinct, and Sandry had an unpleasant suggestion of wilderness processions he had seen entering Toledo, enlivened by brilliant hues and canine adjuncts. He turned whimsically for a look at the rear. Cosman brought it up with a faithfulness to detail that was convincing.

At the western door of the cook-shack they were met by Miss Ordway, blooming like a hothouse plant behind plate glass, an incongruous element in her belted dress of light broadcloth. She leaned in the doorway with immaculate grace, an immaculate hand on either side.

"The wild huntress!" she smiled at Siletz.

"No," said the girl. "I never hunt. I love the deer best in the forest."

"Yes?" said Miss Ordway curiously, and Sandry, kicking the clinging earth from his caulked boots, saw the divining spirit of the writer probing this elemental nature. "Why? Wouldn't you be proud of an antlered head with the mark of your skill between the eyes?"

Siletz flung out a hand in a quick gesture. "Oh, no, no—I could never do it. Unless," she finished, still in that earnest manner, "someone I loved were starving. Then I could."

Sandry looked at the two sweet faces, one so lovely in its smiling, amused alertness, the other so abandoned to the feeling her own words had stirred, and a deep admiration for both filled him.

"Wild to the wild," he said under his breath. "What are you, little Siletz? I wonder if I'll ever know?"

"Siletz," broke in the foreman, passing in his lumbering fashion, "the Preacher's comin'. I heard today he's been seen a couple times—once crossin' the Big Slough below the bridge, an' once in the hills."

For the first time since he had known this girl with her varied nature, Sandry saw the swift lighting of girlish excitement in her face as she flashed around at Daily.

"Oh!" she cried gladly, "how soon will he be here, I wonder?"

"Don't know."

CHAPTER X.

The Fight in the Timber.

When Sandry awoke next morning the gray day was bright outside his pane and he could hear the rumble of the dinkey as it rocked up from the lower railway. By this he knew that breakfast was over and the crews out in the hills. Therefore he got into his clothes in double-quick time, swung up to the cook-shack, washed in the porch and presented himself with apologies to Ma Daily.

Siletz came in in the dusk of the long room and set the cup beside him, quiet, soft-footed, slim and straight in her plain garments. She seemed made for service, the unquestioning service of woman, as she waited upon his needs after the fashion of the primitive mate of man. She placed a laid touch here and there, smiled at him and crossing to the west door, snapped her fingers to the big mongrel and stepped out.

Sandry, his hand unconsciously poised with raised spoon, watched her. He saw her hasten as she neared the edge of the level, and finally, as if she could no longer hold herself to the decorum of her place, break into flight, running like a deer up among the pines with long bounding leaps. As she disappeared he dropped his hand and became aware of Ma Daily in the door to the kitchen. She, too, was watching her.

"Mrs. Daily," he said suddenly, "what is Siletz?"

The old lady turned on him quickly the piercing glance of her sharp eyes. "Just a girl," she said succinctly.

She turned to her realm and Sandry rose and went out in the mist. He climbed steadily with something of the logger's movement. This much he had learned along with a thousand other things of the free life, and yet he was a novice—Johnny Eastern still.

He was thinking deeply as he climbed, lost in the majestic silence of the hushed pines with the stilling carpet of needles at their feet, and it was some time after the first sounds from ahead had come to him dimly that he awakened to the loud voices of men in quarrel. As he broke through the wall of dripping waist-high fern he came full upon a sight that stirred his blood, and fired his wrath, in spite of his effort to keep calm. There in the new cutting stood Hampden, his face red with fury, his eyes snapping, his outstretched fists shaking at Daily who fronted him. Behind the two men were grouped in menacing bunches. They were huge fellows, every one of them, as if they had been picked purposely, bare-armed, open-throated, wet with the constantly falling, soft mist.

Those of Hampden were armed with pikes and peavies to a man—and these are deadly weapons. Daily's crew carried axes and several had cant hooks.

"I told you Johnny Eastern to stay off this here land!" cried the owner of the Yellow Pines, his voice running up on the last word in a squeak of rage, "an' I'll see 't he does! An' you an' your river hogs that you pass as loggers! Rotten outfit, ye are! You'll git off an' stay off! This land belongs to me by right of good money paid—an' you tore down O'Connell's homestead's cabin! That's ag'in the law!"

He thrust out his heavy face belligerently, inviting insult, a first movement of violence. It came, not from Daily, the easy-going, tactful foreman, who had righted many toppling crises, but from Jim Anworthy, the curly-headed young scapegrace who was the worst and favorite of Ma Daily. He flung himself forward with a whoop.

"Rotten are we! 'Live clean to the heart!'"

And with a lightning pass he slapped Hampden square in the face, leaping backward like a cat. In a flash the two groups of men had mingled and the silent woods rang with a conflict that was a delight to every heart in the mixup, with the exception, perhaps of Hampden, who was too small and mean of nature to love anything for its own sake.

Sandry on the outskirts beheld it with consternation.

"Daily!" he cried at the top of his voice. "Stop it! Call them off! John Daily!"

But he caught a glimpse of his foreman's face and it was alight with a rollicking laugh and his great hands, doubled into slugs, were pounding into the melee like pistons. Here and there a face ran blood and one blue shoulder, shoving up for a minute, gaped like open lips. It had been ripped to the bone by a pike point, and it belonged to Collins, the insolent giant. Suddenly Sandry felt himself helpless and small, a reed before a flood, and he was filled with wonder at the force of these untamed dwellers of the wilderness. He had seen men fight before, but never like this, in such deadly enmity, with such glorious disregard of consequences. They had leaped together facing cant hook and peavey as if they wanted to pillow fight, and there was a laughter of rage upon most of the faces he could could share with a negro. The peddler agreed, and asked to be awakened early the next morning. Every room had already been engaged, but the hotel-keeper offered him a room which he glimpse in the surging mass. "Men!" he shouted, jumping up on a stump. "Hampden! Hampden! Daily! Hampden!"

A bare arm shot forward into a face which crumpled and sank out of sight and the owner of the arm looked up at him.

"Come off your perch, Johnny!" he cried with the insolence of indifference, and even in the excitement of the moment the thrust went home to the young owner. His jaw tightened and he marked the man, one of the fallers, for future reckoning.

How the fight would have ended Sandry, thinking it over afterward, could never decide. They were evenly matched in intent, the two factions, and nearly so in numbers, though Hampden's force was a trifle the stronger.

Blows rained fast and furious. Blood was flowing freely and the oaths and laughter had given place to panting silence.

"You low-down cheat!" he heard Daily say as he closed with Hampden. "We'll settle—a few things—now."

There was the scent of heated flesh and of warm blood in the close, moist air, and the clump and swish and crunch of heavy boots thrashing the fern. From under the tramping feet he caught sight of a limp figure, crumpled on its side.

Something in its ghastly stillness caught at his heart and set a purpose in its horrified amazement.

He must stop this thing at any cost. Springing down he caught up a long blacksnake whip lying coiled beside a stump. It had evidently come with the Yellow Pines outfit, for what purpose he did not know, for there was not such an article anywhere in camp.

Raising his arm he whirled it back to send the long lash singing in among the struggling mass, when a sound, coming clearly out of the brooding stillness of the great pine woods, arrested him.

Dinner Stories

A peddler arrived one evening at a small town, and went to the only hotel there. Every room had already been engaged, but the hotel-keeper offered him a room which he could share with a negro. The peddler agreed, and asked to be awakened early the next morning. Every room had already been engaged, but the hotel-keeper offered him a room which he

Several jokers overheard the proceedings, and while the peddler slept blackened his face.

The next morning, being in a hurry to catch a train, he made straight for the station when he was awakened. While passing a mirror in the waiting room he stopped suddenly and exclaimed: "Hang it all! They've called the wrong guy!"

"It says here in this scientific article that some colors can be felt."

"Well, that's true, all right."

"Oh, is it? What color did you ever feel?"

"Why, I have often felt blue."—Florida Times-Union.

Two workmen met in the street and stopped to chat about their friends.

"Casey seems to be doing well while he is," remarked one presently.

"He'll not stop long at that job," replied the other, with a gloomy shake of the head.

"Why not?" He seems to be quite comfortably placed."

"But he'll not stay there a month. I say it, and I've said it ever since

WHY "ANURIC" IS AN INSURANCE AGAINST SUDDEN DEATH!

Sufferers from Backache, Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble.

Before an Insurance Company will take a risk on your life the examining physician will test the urine and report whether you are a good risk. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headache, dizzy spells, or the twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism and gout. The urine is often cloudy, full of sediment; chances often get sore and sleep is disturbed two or three times a night. This is the time you should consult some physician of wide experience, such as Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Send him 10 cents for sample package of his new discovery—"Anuric." Write him your symptoms and send a sample of urine for test. Experience has taught Dr. Pierce that "Anuric" is the most powerful agent in dissolving uric acid, as hot water melts sugar, besides being absolutely harmless and is endowed with other properties, for it preserves the kidneys in a healthy condition by thoroughly cleansing them. Being so many times more active than lithia, it clears the heart valves of any sandy substances which may clog them and checks the degeneration of the blood vessels, as well as regulating blood pressure. "Anuric" is a regular insurance and life saver for all big meat eaters and those who deposit lime-salts in their joints. Ask your druggist for "Anuric" put up by Dr. Pierce, in 50-cent packages.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets for the liver and bowels have been favorably known for nearly 50 years—Adver-

he got that job eighteen months ago.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquors or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquors.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Most headaches, "biliousness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "foggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. ## Married Life on $800 a Month

By Mrs. M. A. Leonard

"Wasn't it a lovely evening?" exclaimed Molly Suter, as they felt their way along the dark, slippery streets. "And wasn't it beautiful, Mrs. Bilson to invite us to meet her pleasant friends. It almost seems as if she means to include us in their little circle."

John was too busy picking his way over the crossing, carrying his sleeping boy in his arms, to answer for some minutes. When they were again walking along side by side he said:

"Really, I had forgotten people could be so happy as all these folks seemed to be. Being well and seeing they have no wolf to drive from the door every hour of their lives. Easy circumstances, pleasant friends. No wonder they are so jolly and well-satisfied. It is just as I said to Julia Osgood: It takes a man in comfortable circumstances to be good natured. Peace in the home is largely a matter of being well."

"Not if people love each other, John," Molly clung close to her husband's arm.

John did not answer, and they walked the remainder of the distance in silence.

The little cottage certainly looked dingy and bare compared with the beautiful home of the doctor, and as they entered their door the heavy weight of anxiety that belongs to the life of those dogged by the pressing need of money settled down on their shoulders.

"If the Mortons invite us to their house I want to ask all of them here next time," began Molly as they prepared for bed.

"Everything I ask those people here," John said, "is shabby and old-fashioned. I would be constantly thinking of the difference between their houses and ours." John had settled back in his comfortable bed.

"Don't be foolish, John, dear. We need friends as much as we need money. If those people ask us to their houses and give us such pleasure, we would be very foolish to refuse because we cannot entertain as royally as they do us. They know our circumstances, and they expect nothing from us that we cannot give. We can frankly do our best in the spirit in which they give to us. Molly placed her hand on his shoulder and smiled into his gloomy face. You are bearing your end of the burden better than I am, Molly, and I am only adding to it. You know it is heavy enough as it is."

"If we can lift together the burden it will not be undependable for either of us."

John heavy a heavy sigh and turned away. The evening had cheered Molly, but it seemed only to have emphasized their poverty. So John and he felt that a great gift was fixed between him and the comfortable people on "Easy Street."

DANCING FROCK OF OLD ROSE CHIFFON

Old rose colored chiffon is used with fetching effect in this dancing frock. The skirt is veiled with a very light pink chiffon. A band of net is trimmed with a band of old rose. Pannet velvet and skunk fur are used as trimming. The short sleeves of chiffon are trimmed with velvet and skunk. The V of the waist is trimmed with fine silver lace. Three dark roses are worn at the opening of the waist and three more are used as part of the trimming of the skirt. A wreath of roses about the head makes a charming hair dressing.

Fried Rabbit—After pelt is removed, singe with oil paper, then wash in warm water and cut in small pieces. To one gallon water add one teaspoon soda; soak rabbit in this over night or at least two or three hours. Boil one hour. Have butter or lard hot, put in rabbit, slice one onion over it and fry brown.

Sponge Fingers—Measure weight of three eggs in butter, sugar and flour. Beat eggs and sugar together fifteen minutes. Melt butter and add alternately with flour to the egg mixture, stirring gently all the time. Then add half teaspoon baking powder and a few drops of vanilla or other flavoring. Bake in well greased tin ten or fifteen minutes. Turn out to cool, then split in half and spread with jam or jelly. Coat top with white glaze. In the summer fresh strawberries or raspberries are delicious used as a filling. Canned pineapple, pear or other fruit can be used satisfactorily.

Maryland Sally Lunn—Two tablespoons sugar, two cups flour, one and one-half tablespoons butter, two teaspoons baking powder, one-quarter tablespoon salt, three eggs separated, one cup milk. Cream together sugar and butter, add the egg yolks beaten thoroughly and then the flour mixed with the baking powder, alternately with the milk. Fold in egg whites, well beaten, and bake about forty minutes in a tube pan.

Peppers Filled With Cheese—Six bell peppers of medium size, one and one-half cups cream cheese, six eggs, one teaspoon salt, one-third cup onion, dash red pepper, cracker dust. If the cheese is hard it should be grated, otherwise put it through a potato ricer. Beat the eggs very light and add to the cream cheese with the seasonings. Thickened with cracker dust, fill the peppers and make a very light brown in a moderate oven.

Apple Lemon Pie—Two cups chopped apples, one-half cupful ground soda crackers, grated rind and juice of two lemons, two eggs well beaten, two tablespoons melted butter, one and one-half cups sugar, pie crust. Mix together the apples, crackers, lemons, eggs, butter and sugar in the order given. Then use a rolling pin to press the mixture into a pie pan. Bake slowly for about thirty minutes. This makes two small pies or one large one.

Kalifornian Vegetal—One large cauliflower broken and parboiled in boiling salt water; have ready some toasted bread (cut in tubes) in a deep dish; mix together equal parts of flour and butter to cream and add to this slowly enough of the cauliflower water to make a sauce; boil this up once; put the cauliflower on the toast and pour over the sauce.

Le Pluie Whip—One can Hawaiian pineapple, one-quarter pound nut meats, one-quarter pound marshmallows, one-quarter pound candied cherries, and one pint double cream. Cut pineapple into small cubes, chop nuts, marshmallows and cherries rather fine and insert all into the cream, beaten for fifteen minutes. Garnish with Maraschino cherries.

Pigs in Blankets—Dust large, plump oysters with pepper and salt, wrap each inside a thin slice of bacon, and skewer together with a toothpick. Lay in a hot skillet and cook till oysters begin to curl and the bacon crisps. Serve very hot—several to each person.

MANY TEACHERS TO RECEIVE STATE AID

Will Probably Require $50,000 to Meet Demands of Those Eligible Under New Law.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., Nov. 3.—Approximately 2,600 teachers in Wisconsin will receive state aid this year as the result of a law passed at the last session of the legislature giving aid of from $2 to $8 a month to teachers who have remained in the same rural school district for more than one year. The state superintendent's office estimates that it will probably require $50,000 to meet this aid.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

THE CATHARTIC AND THE APPENDIX

If there is one out and dried pathological idea fixed in the lay mind it is that a good physic is a good medicine no matter what ails you.

And if there is one domestic mistake which may be said to cost a life much more often than it saves a life, it is this very obsession.

Contrary to the almanac theory, doctors nowadays do not invariably begin the treatment of an illness by administering a physic. Nor do they begin the examination by inquiring about the bowels.

There is at least one fairly popular ailment which is made distinctly worse by a physic and this is acute appendicitis. There are other conditions which are aggravated by physics too, but in the case of appendicitis the reason to avert without medical advice is far too often the straw that turns the scales against recovery.

Why? Because if there is any remedy appropriate for the treatment of appendicitis it is absolute rest. That means not only rest in bed, but an absolute fast for at least forty-eight hours, and exquisite care to avoid every unnecessary exertion, even turning in bed.

What is the purpose of this intestine in a split—as nearly as such a thing may be accomplished in life, it endeavors to prevent the spread of infection from the localized infection in the appendix. If the infection can be absolutely localized for forty-eight hours, the patient will recover, as a rule—not always, by any means.

Now, anybody with half an eye can see how dangerous the administration of a cathartic of any kind would be in such circumstances. A dose of castor oil or salts taken in the presence of the beginning of an attack of acute appendicitis is liable to rupture the appendix, spreading the infection all over the abdominal cavity and producing fatal peritonitis (inflammation of the bowels).

So remember, please, that it is a risky business taking castor oil or other cathartics when you are not quite certain whose formality, by developing appendicitis or other conditions, you are trying to cure.

Perforation spells purgation nine times out of ten.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Some anonymous and therefore not serious person wishes to know if he should advise a ruptured friend to avoid operation and try wearing a plaster device instead.

Answer—Usually we ignore unsigned letters. Further, we cannot give advice for hypothetical cases or those of friends. In this instance, however, we will break the rule to answer—don't do it unless you would rupture the friendship.

Coffee Not a Drug.

Kindly tell me whether (1) coffee is a narcotic; (2) a drug; (3) a habit-forming drug.

Answer—It is not a narcotic, nor a drug, nor is it habit-forming. It is a stimulant, and is useful for most people, perhaps injurious to nervous people.

PASSING ALONG CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

Do you believe in passing last year's Christmas presents along?

A letter friend is very anxious that I should answer that question.

As usual, I must begin by saying, "That depends."

What do the Christmas presents which you are considering passing along represent?

Is it a gift of Love or Obligation? Do you have an obligation to pass on to give for love and thought, and an effort to choose something that will particularly please or help you? Or do they represent merely the conventional performance of what was once a spontaneous act of friendship but has long ago congealed into a rather irksome obligation?

Of course no one with a sense of genuine worth would give away gifts of the first class.

As for the second kind of gift, well, at the risk of shocking some of my reader friends, I must say I do not see anything so terrible in passing that along.

Little More Than Christmas Cards.

Few of the people who would be shocked at this idea would think it a Christmas card. Yet, to pass along gifts but a greeting slightly more expensive and pretensions than a Christmas card.

Some people have utility, others are just Christmas gifts. What harm in thanking the donor, putting them away among your pretties and passing them along the next year? Do not let the butter experience a deeper thrill of gratitude at being relieved of so much shopping than you did when you first received the gift.

Of course some people might think remain in the same school district the last legislature passed a law permitting the payment of state aid in the sum of $2 a month to a teacher who has held the same position two years. $4 a month where the position has been held three years, and $8 a month for more than three years. The work of the teacher must have the approval of the county superintendent and before this aid is paid. Payment of this aid comes out of the seven-tenths school tax of the state, which amounts to approximately $2,200,000.

At the end of each school year the names of the eligible teachers will be certified to the state superintendent and later to the secretary of state for payment.

The estimate of the number of teachers who will receive state aid is based on statistics gathered last year. Of the 6,635 rural school teachers in the state, 1,563 had held their position two years, 1,225 for three years, 189 for four years, 50 for five years, and 81 for more than five years. Besides this there are a number of teachers in state graded schools, not in incorporated cities, who will be entitled to aid under the law. Additional aid is given to teachers with special education qualifications.

Of the 6,635 rural school teachers in the state the reports to the State Superintendent show that twenty-two have completed a college course, 80 had attended but not graduated from college; 123 had completed a full course at a normal school; 199 had completed a rural course at a normal school; 1,093 had attended but not completed a normal school course; 1,349 had completed a county training school course; 149 had completed a teachers' training course in a high school; 2,608 had completed a regular high school course and only 104 had attended a common school only.

NO TREATING LAW WILL DECREASE DRINKING OF LIQUOR AMONG WOMEN

London, Nov. 3.—The no-treating law now enforced in the London district will from present indications greatly decrease drinking among women, for it is among the women of the lower classes that treating is the most prevalent. Even in the most poverty stricken slums of the East End, a woman who drinks by herself is considered mean, greedy and unsocial and she is accordingly ostracized. The only social life these women is at the public houses. At all times of the day they may be seen around the bars or in the street in front with beer glasses in hand. Since the law prevents the men entering the public houses, women with babies in their arms stand outside for their drinks. But often children tend to the babies while the mothers and grandmothers are inside.

The no-treating order went into effect in the West End and in the more respectable parts of London without a protest. It was taken as a joke and the public houses were crowded with men buying their last treat. But in the East End, actual resentment was felt, chiefly among the women. They regarded it as a blow at their main source of amusement.

Settlement workers count on taking advantage of the new liquor regulations by starting more social halls. A number of these are in operation in the slums now, and their popularity is growing. They were especially designed for soldiers and their girls as a cheap place to spend an evening. The halls are provided with pianos and games, and other soft drinks are sold at cost price. Heretofore, the saloon, or "pub" has been the only social meeting place for the people of the slums, who are glad to escape their own dismal tenements.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur. Recipe and nobody can tell. Brush it through hair.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store, a 50 cent bottle of "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff. It stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Kettle, let water cool and add will be on top. Kim off. Much easier than trying to squeeze hot cracklings.

THE TABLE.

Salmon and Green Tomato Dish (new).—Slice two or three green tomatoes; sprinkle with salt, let stand a few hours; drain. Make a syrup of equal parts water and brown sugar, a little salt and spices to taste (do not make too sweet). ## BRONCHIAL GOLD Yields To Delicious Vinol

Philadelphia, Pa.—"Last Fall I was troubled with a very severe bronchial cold, headaches, backache, and sick to my stomach. I was so bad I became alarmed and tried several medicines, also a doctor, but did not get any relief. # BELOIT PAPER HAS TRIBUTE TO CITIZEN

Frederick J. Day, Former Janesville Resident, Sacrifices Ten Thousand Dollars to Practice Golden Rule.

In the Beloit Daily News the following tribute is paid to a former Janesville resident, Frederick J. Day, that will be most pleasing to his many friends in this city who knew him and his family during his long residence in this city. The Daily News article says:

"Do unto others as you would be done by." Surely a splendid rule for one to guide his or her life by. But, sad to relate, there are few who adopt it in reality, though the number of people who claim to do so is legion. But Beloit can proudly claim Frederick John Day, one who not only lives that way, but modestly keeps it from the world, as a resident.

"This story, to be somewhat briefly told, came not from the lips of Mr. Day, nor any of his relatives. Nor would it ever have become known from that source. Indeed in this person one finds modesty, honesty, and a big heart, a rare combination in this age of frenzied fanaticism.

"Frederick John Day, with his family, are living comfortably and quietly in a pretty little bungalow in Fourth street. Two years ago they resided in Janesville, where Mr. Day diligently worked at his trade as a painter.

"He was an honest, hardworking citizen and a kindhearted neighbor. As he had toiled in the past so did he expect to toil in the future. And he loved his work and he loved his family and his fellow-men.

"And then came the change. Edward A. Day, for fifty years a resident of Beloit, a brother of Frederick John Day, passed to the world beyond. He was possessed at the time of his death of a large estate. His nearest relatives were his brothers and sisters, all but one of whom lived in England. For many years he had lived alone, conducting his affairs in his own quiet way.

"He loved his brother and often expressed his desire that his brother would retire and spend the balance of his life in ease. But fate had not decreed it as kindred with Frederick John, in the way of worldly goods, as with Edward.

"Therefore Edward resolved to pave the way for a life of ease for his brother, and he executed a will. Every brother, sister, niece and nephew was remembered, legacies of $2,000 each to the six brothers and sisters and of $500 each to the nieces and nephews.

"On the promise of the brother that he would forever abstain from work, he was made his residuary legatee in the will and consequently has come into a fortune, which may, by careful handling, reach into six figures before its owner is called upon to leave it.

"But the point of the story lies in a clause in the instrument which gave the residuary legatee, also named as executor of the will, the privilege of five years in which to pay the legacies in the will, which amounted to some $20,000. Also a clause which read: 'And in case any of the above mentioned legacies should die without issue before the legacies for five years payable, then I desire that such legacy be paid to my brother, Frederick John Day.'

"It lay in the power of the executor and residuary legatee to hold out the payment of the legacies for five years, thereby gaining the profits and interest that would naturally accumulate in the five year period of $6,000. It would also have given him the $4,000 which was paid to two sisters who died during the past year, one of whom died one week after the legacy had been paid her.

"Did Frederick John Day accept the privilege the will gave him? Indeed not. As soon as the will had been admitted to probate in the county court at Janesville he commenced a world-wide search for his relatives, many of whom he had never seen since he left England in his younger days.

"He found them, and also learned that many of them were quite needy in their old age. He traced his nieces and nephews to all parts of the world and found them. Then he forwarded the legacies, as he would be doing.

"Beloit has surely gained a good citizen and it is questionable whether or not the legacies will ever know the debt of gratitude they owe him. Mr. Day's action has aroused much favorable comment among the people connected with the settlement of the estate, and in the minds of many it was thought only fair that he should receive some of the reward in this world in the respect of his fellow men for this kind deed.

"And as Frederick John Day sits by his bedside he might well feel proud of the way he has done the burden of this world, his children and friends can truthfully say 'There was a life well spent.'

Why Tolerate Catarrh?

You have noticed, no doubt, that any cold aggravates nasal catarrh, and the flow of mucous amazes you that such objectionable matter could find lodgment in your head. To ignore this catarrh when the cold subsides is wrong because it continues to slowly injure the delicate linings of the nasal passages and clog them up.

To correct catarrh, cleanse the nostrils frequently with a solution of warm water and salt, insert vaseline on retiring, and take a spoonful of Scott's Emulsion after meals for one month. Scott's acts through the blood to feed the tissues, and contains soothing glycerine to check the inflammation and heal the sensitive membranes.

Scott's is pleasant to take.

BRANCH OFFICE FOR GAZETTE AT BAKER & SON

For the convenience of its patrons and the public generally, the Gazette has established a branch office with J. P. Baker & Son, Drug Store, corner West Milwaukee and Franklin streets.

Copies for classified advertisements, orders for papers, subscriptions and matters of this nature, as well as items of news may be left at the Baker Drug Store, and will receive the same prompt attention as if they were sent direct to the office.

Handkerchief Newspapers. Pocket handkerchief newspapers were issued in England in the early part of the last century while journals were subject to the stamp duty. The editor of one of them, Bertholds Political Handkerchief, suggested that after six months' wear, if the ink washed out, he would buy the handkerchiefs back again from his readers. The price of this novel newspaper was fourpence.

Already Done. Mrs. Slocum (to her husband's chum)—"Tom, I wish you could break George of playing poker." The Chum—"I did break him, only last night." Chicago Herald.

Saturday, Nov. 6, and Ends Saturday, Nov. 20

This means thirteen days of the most ruthless and drastic cutting and slashing of prices ever attempted in this end of the state. The Court has placed the stock in the hands of the MACOMBER SALES COMPANY, of Minneapolis, Minn., and the Administrator orders that the stock be closed out in rush order. In order to accomplish the results so much desired, so as to settle the estate, prices will be thrown to the winds, the price axe will fall on every article in the stock, and the mightiest bargain carnival inaugurated that ever was started in Janesville. The MACOMBER SALES COMPANY are known as the biggest bargain givers on the continent, so this big money-saving event should be appreciated by all. The stock must be turned into cash at once.
